

NO ALIEN NEWSPAPERS NEEDED IN AMERICA

---

“One tongue,” said John Milton, “is enough for a woman.”

He said that because he did not wish his daughter to learn French. He thought English was good enough for her, as an Englishwoman.

We borrow Milton's thought, to say that one tongue is enough, for an American. And that tongue ought to be the language of America, not the language of some alien land.

The editor of a foreign-language newspaper has just been sentenced in Chicago, for attacking through his journal, the American Army and Navy, in an alien tongue, and disseminating his scurrility within the United States.

Why should we have foreign language newspapers at all?

If a man lives here and makes his money here, and enjoys the blessings that go with life in America, he ought, in all conscience to be willing to learn the language. And he can find enough reading in the newspapers printed in the American language.

These foreign-language papers simply keep alive foreign allegiance and hypheisms and serve as agencies of foreign propaganda in this country. There is nothing American about most of them.

Talk United States!
